

Community Voice

How are kids to respond to double standards regarding book content?

We stumbled on this old school paper recently and my kids commented that it is really ironic that this was the expectation for their school writings while there is so much profanity, sex, drugs, etc. in many of the school library books. These kids are smart and they recognize inconsistent messages when they see them!

All examples and narratives that KFEI shares are verified.

If you would like to submit an experience or resource that you think the KSD community should be aware of please do so here.

Sources of examples will be protected as confidential, but all accounts must be fully verified and supported by documentation and/or firsthand experience. The integrity of this effort is critical and KFEI reserves the right to use discretion when choosing what to share.